Hisab: the store's daily money record

Hisab is where the store records every rupee that comes in and goes out, each day. The owners use it to check sales against invoices, cash against the drawer, and card and UPI payments against the bank's settlement statement. It only works if each store enters its own day completely.

What you enter

ENTRY	WHAT IT IS
Sale	One entry per invoice: invoice number, amount, customer, and how it was paid.
Collection	Money received against an earlier invoice or an advance.
Expense	Money the store spent, with a category such as Porter, Coffee / tea, Courier, Housekeeping, Repairs & maintenance or Stationery.
Cash move	Cash handed over or deposited, so the drawer balance stays right.

Payment split

Record how the customer actually paid. If an invoice of ₹60,000 was paid ₹20,000 in cash and ₹40,000 by UPI, enter both parts. The owners match UPI and card amounts against the bank statement, and cash against the drawer. A wrong payment method makes both checks fail.

Sales: invoice by invoice

Every invoice made that day gets its own entry with its number. Do not add several invoices into one amount. If an invoice number is skipped or cancelled, say so, so the gap is explained.

Expenses

- Pick the right category.
- Attach a photo of the bill. If there is no bill, mark it as no bill and write what it was for.
- Petty cash expenses come out of the petty cash balance, so enter them the day they happen.

Closing the day

At closing, count the cash in the drawer by denomination and enter it. Hisab shows the cash it expects from the day's entries. If the counted cash is different, write the reason. Never change an entry to make the numbers match. A difference with an honest reason is a small problem. A hidden difference is a big one.

Four rules

- Enter every invoice the same day, before closing.
- Record the real payment method and split.

- Every expense has a category and a bill photo, or is marked no bill.
- Count the cash, enter it, and explain any difference.

Remember these

- One Hisab entry per invoice, with the invoice number.
- Record the real payment split. It is checked against the bank and the drawer.
- Expenses need a category and a bill photo, or a no-bill note.
- At closing, count cash by denomination and explain any difference.
